Subject: I strongly disagree with the settlement because it

I strongly disagree with the settlement because it DOES NOT do anything to prevent MS to practice what there had been doing in the pass. I think a lot of you have missed the point on what the real issue is. The real issue is not how MS deal with the OEM venders and others, the real issue is how MS uses the advantage they have on the OS and apply it on their applications by hiding key element on the API and a lot of close standard. Because of that MS have an upper hand on other software houses, that make them hard to compete fairly. One by one they had taken out Wordperfect, Netscape, Realplayer, Borland and many more to come. With Windows XP a lot more companies will be taken out, first on my mind will be Winzip, next will be CD burner software companies and who knows who is next. With their new Passport service, there are coming after you. (U.S. Gov.) Think. They will have access to personal information on the Passport account worldwide. If you know how to think you can see the danger. Stop them before its too late. Thats all I have to say.
